Spring 4

I found these springs whilst on one of my exploration days within the King Living factory. They represent such an integral part of the innovative design of King Living's furniture. Springs have an incredible design and possess the ability to move and store kinetic energy. It is the movement and energy captured in these images that has the ability to transform a space making it more vibrant and lively.

Available in:

Landscape (1054 x 1474mm) or (815 x 695mm)

These interpretations were inspired by the classic furniture patterns discovered on my journey through the King Living factory, as well as from my experience of watching suit tailors around the world creating masterpieces. There is always such a precise order within the disorder of the creative space.

Projecting light and creating shadows with the mesh I once again worked with the interpretation of modular shapes as a theme. I photographed individual sections creating graphics with a sense of a travel journey that can be used as individual moments or as a whole story.

Texture, form and the play of light gave these feather subjects distinct individual characteristics. Each feather had not only an individual story, but a shared journey.

Modular Landscapes 2

Modular Landscapes is a play on the concept of the King Modular Sofas.

I had glass made up in modular shapes and experimented with ideas of being able to place images into different configurations to suit individual taste and space requirements in the same way that King designed the modular sofas. You can hang them horizontally or vertically which is an underlying theme throughout the range.
